Bavarian Leader Calls For Resignation Of Foreign Minister

BERLIN, April 30.—With the inter-allied supreme council assembled in London to discuss further military penalties upon Germany, the German government was still standing pat today upon the indemnity proposals contained in the note to Washington. There were persistent rumors in Wilhelmstrasse that the United States had replied formally to the German note, but this was denied by Ellis Loring Dresel, the U. S. commissioner. The decision to stand on the latest offer for the time being, was adopted at a four hour session at the cabinet meeting last night. This contradicted the prediction the ministry would resign at the earliest moment, making way for a new cabinet committed to complete capitulation to the allied demands.

The only rift in the clouds of gloom overhanging Wilhelmstrasse was a vague and unconfirmed report from Paris that the reparations commission has decided that the question involving Germany's payment of 20,000,000,000 gold marks by May 1, does not justify further military invasion.

Majority and Independent Socialist leaders anxious over the outlook are urging capitulation by the cabinet.

The Bavarian leader, Herr Seim made a bitter attack upon Foreign Minister Simons although generally speaking the hostility against the foreign minister seems to be dying down.

"Any minister who was knave enough to engage an American lawyer is impossible and must go, declared the Bavarian leader.

PARIS, April 30.—Germany again defied the allies today. The allied reparations commission received a note in which Germany made final refusal to pay 1,000,000,000 gold marks which the allies had demanded by March 23. The 1,000,000,000 gold marks are part of the 12,000,000,000 gold marks the allies alleged were due May 1.

WAR PROVIDES A THEME FOR MISS MILLAR, FRIDAY

In spite of the rainy weather last night, a goodly audience gathered at Grace M. E. church at the special services under the direction of Miss Millar, who took for "Bible Text" John 1-12 which reads, "But as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name."

The message was a demonstration of the practical adaptability of the Gospel to the lives of men in severest crises; showing the utter uselessness of all other endeavors when the life is imperiled. Miss Millar wrought out the beauty and truth of her scripture text by weaving about it the story of her rich experience in service with the Australian, New Zealand and American soldier boys in the recent world war.

She was called to minister spiritual counsel and encouragement. She served in camp and barracks, largely in Y. M. C. A. huts or open fields. She paid high tribute to the Y. M. C. A. and the work done during the war and branded the agitation against the Y. M. C. A. as unjust propaganda. The first part of the address had to do with the call to arms upon declaration of war.

She gave a vivid description of her ocean trip to Australia and the thrills that came in dodging the German men-of-war that haunted the Pacific ocean at that time, the narrow escape and final safe landing in the midst of her own Khaki clad countrymen.

She told of a group of 16 young men who came to her at the close of a meeting in camp and told her they would do their best to die for her. She replied that she did not want them to die for her, but asked them if they knew the One who had died for them. They answered, "We have never known Him until tonight." Only one of the sixteen returned from the war and he was terribly maimed. In conversation with a relative, he said the greatest night in his life was the night when he learned to "Know Him Who died for him."

Miss Millar had sixteen brothers, cousins and relatives in the war. She gave a wonderful account of Gallipoli and the landing, struggles and withdrawal of the troops. She showed how Christ was in the trenches and on the battlefield waiting to minister to the dying who would receive Him. How before going over the top, the long line of trenches would be marked by rows of kneeling praying figures, asking for forgiveness, for strength, committing loved ones to the care of Christ and accepting Him as Saviour and Lord. She showed the shallowness of atheistical pretense upon the part of men in health and safety, and how the unbelieving

Today was the fourth straight Saturday it has rained this month. Saturday April 2, was the only Saturday this year the weather man has been considered respectable. That day was fair and warm.

According to Mrs. Jeffries, the local weather observer the amount of rain fall for the first 12 hours of Saturday was recorded as slightly over 1.4 inches. The snowfall was 1 inch. Lowest temperature Saturday morning was 32 degrees and the highest was 39.

BRITAIN AND ITALY FEARS THE CONSEQUENCES OF AN INVASION WITH FRENCH IN RUHR VALLEY

French Influence Is Expected To Predominate When Conference Of Supreme Council On Reparations Problem Opens This Afternoon—Italy Anticipates America's Vetoing Of Allies' Decision At London

LONDON, April 30.—At a conference of the British and French premiers a few hours before the opening of the supreme council meeting today, Premier Lloyd George suggested that an ultimatum be sent to Germany giving her one week to make new indemnity proposals before the allies move troops into the Ruhr district, it was learned this afternoon.

The conference was held at Lloyd George's official residence at 10 Downing-st just before noon.

Premier Briand was accompanied by M. Berthelot, representing the French foreign office.

Lord D'Abernon, British Ambassador to Germany, attended the conference and presented further information regarding the German indemnity proposals.

At the conclusion of the Downing Street conference, Premier Briand said:

"We have arranged a program for the supreme council which meets at 3 o'clock to force the issue upon Germany."

Earlier it had been announced that the supreme council would not meet until 4 o'clock.

The International News Service was authorized to say that the following is the position of Italy:

"Count Sforza (the Italian foreign minister) holds the opinion that the occupation of the Ruhr is a leap in the dark and that it might lead to disastrous economic consequences. The British and Italian views are similar. Italy and Great Britain support France yet they want to explore every possibility before taking drastic and doubtful action."

Also there is absolute unity and accord among the allies, French influence is expected to dominate the meeting of the supreme council which is to determine definitely whether or not the German Ruhr district is to be occupied to compel Germany to meet the indemnity obligations and other military penalties to be put into effect by Marshal Foch.

The present meeting of the supreme council is a momentous event not only for Germany, but for the allies as well. The first session of the council was scheduled to open at 3 o'clock this afternoon, but it was believed the schedule of indemnity would not be taken up until Sunday.

As the delegates assembled no further word had come from Berlin that Germany was amplifying her indemnity offer but reports persisted that Dr. Walter Simons, the German foreign minister, probably would send a note to Great Britain.

The Daily News was authority for the statement that if Germany failed to make an amended offer, Premier Lloyd George was expected to acquiesce formally in the military occupation of the Ruhr district and also to send British troops to assist in extending the zone of occupation in Germany.

The United States will not participate actively in the supreme council meeting, but Washington will follow closely the developments. An exchange telegraph dispatch from Rome quoted the Tribune as saying:

"Italy would not be surprised if America vetoes the allies' decision at London."

France has an imposing diplomatic and military delegation in London. It includes Premier Briand, who arrived last night; Marshal Foch, generalissimo of the allied armies; Marshal Joffre; Gen. Weygand, who directed the Polish counter offensive against the Russian armies last summer; M. Berthelot of the French foreign office and M. Loucheur, minister for liberated regions, in the French cabinet. In addition there are numerous experts and secretaries. Count Sforza, the Italian foreign minister delayed his arrival in London. To some extent he is the "unknown quantity," although it was expected that he would agree with the decisions of the majority in the council.

The experts who have been studying the German indemnity proposals have drawn up a report for submission to the council. The suggestion has been made that a new commission of reparations experts be created including a representative from the United States.

Turning Backward

NOBODY makes a living by being a consumer. That is why it is nobody's business to protect the consumer against foolish laws that make him pay more for the things he buys.

There are thousands of organizations working to maintain or increase price. There are a few associations of an opposite purpose, but they do nothing and can do nothing to lower prices, because they are either ignorant of economic laws or waste their efforts in futile attempts to improve conditions among the industrial workers by what is called "welfare" legislation.

The only way in which the consumers can be reached is by putting the facts before them thru the press. Here are some important facts showing the increased burdens that would be imposed on the consuming public by a few of the schedules as approved by the House committee on ways and means and the Senate finance committee in the late lamented Fordney tariff bill.

The avowed purpose of a protective tariff is to raise prices. In the earlier years of the tariff discussion it was claimed that by encouraging the developing of new industries protection would so increase domestic competition that prices would be reduced. This was before the days of the great combinations called "trusts," that have found it more profitable to maintain prices than to engage in destructive competition. We hear no more of high tariff as a means of lowering prices. Every plea put forward, whether by farmers or manufacturers, for higher duties asserts that such duties are necessary to keep up prices against foreign competition. If protection doesn't make prices higher, it cannot benefit the domestic producer.

The fundamental issue involved in the tariff question appears to be that of producer versus consumer. The former wants high prices for his products. The latter wants to buy in the cheapest market. But the producer is also a consumer. The farmer, as a general rule buys each year as much as he sells. The industrial worker sells his labor, for which he tries to get the highest price. In a world so constituted that any advance in prices would be accompanied by higher wages or salaries it would not matter how much prices rose. But experience has shown that wages do not keep pace with advancing prices, and the burden of increased costs falls heaviest on those who have nothing to sell but their labor.

Accepting the claims of the protection advocates as to the higher prices that will result from higher tariffs, let us consider briefly what will be the cost to the American people of the increased duties demanded by special interests. While it is not true that a tariff always raises prices of domestic goods to the same extent that it increases the cost of foreign products, the general tendency is to force up prices of domestic goods to the point where they will just undersell the duty-paid foreign article.

In the case of imported sugar, for instance, it is easy to see how a duty of one cent per pound adds a cent to the price of sugar. Domestic sugar pays no tax, yet its price is always practically the same as that of the tax-paid foreign sugar. The effect of the sugar tax is therefore not only to increase the cost of imported sugar, but also of all domestic beet and cane sugars. While the tax on foreign sugar goes to the government, the higher price at which domestic sugar sells because of the tax is protection's favor to the home sugar producers and refiners.

Estimates of the annual burden in the form of higher prices that would be laid on the consumers by a return to a protective tariff, have varied from one to three billions of dollars. Based on what the farmers and manufacturers demand in the way of higher duties, the total increase would amount to about five billions. A return to the Payne-Aldrich schedules would mean an increase of about two billions. A small part of this would go into the public revenues, the rest going into the pockets of domestic producers and manufacturers.

Take, for instance, the proposed tax on hides and leather. The duty favored by the Senate finance committee would have increased the cost of the foreign and domestic hides that we use by about $70,000,000 annually. With this tax on hides the tanners will have to have protection by duties averaging at least 2 per cent., which would result in a further increase of $100,000,000 in our leather bill. Then comes the boot-and-shoe and the leather-goods manufacturer, who wants higher protection for his products because of the threatened increase in the cost of leather. By the time that the manufacturers' and retail dealers' profits on the higher-priced leather goods have been passed on down to the consumers, the hide tax of $70,000,000 will have swollen to at least $200,000,000.

If the expectations of the farmers that the tax of 40 cents per bushel on wheat will raise the price to the extent of the tax on the wheat consumed in this country are realized, the annual burden of the bread tax would be over $200,000,000. When the price of wheat goes up the price of flour and bread quickly follows, and the maker and distributor see to it that the consumer pays all that the market will bear.

The burden of higher prices, however, is the smallest part of the cost of protection. A tariff law drafted in compliance with the demands of the farmers and manufacturers will announce to the world that we have decided to abandon the tariff policy adopted in 1913, and return to the old system of restricted trade and high taxation. We will in effect declare commercial war against all other nations, and tell them that while we wish to sell them our products, we do not wish to buy. We provoke them to retaliate for our exclusion policy by similar duties on our goods, and thereby are almost certain to lose a large part of our profitable export trade.

Having spent billions of dollars in building up our merchant marine, we propose to cut down the volume of our imports and exports, and thus make our ocean-carrying trade unprofitable. Instead of promoting peace and good-will by removing trade barriers, we announce a commercial policy that inevitably breeds international disputes that tend to hostility and war.

The American people have asked for a reduction in the cost of living, and for relief from the oppressive burden of high prices and high rents, due chiefly to high taxation. What will they say of the statesmanship that proposes to give them higher tariff taxes, restricted trade, loss of foreign markets, lessened employment for labor, and hundreds of idle steamships rusting in our ports?

New York Day-By-Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 29.—Thoughts while strolling around New York. The natty fashion plates are wearing pink collars. George Arlson. One eye is all pulled out of shape by a monocle.

Two new theatres on West Forty Eighth street. And the town is full of jobless actors. Making waffles in a window. Nothing whets the appetite like Child's pancake jugglers, however.

East Seventeenth Street. Here's where Boss Murphy lives. A neighborhood of street corner loafers. Whistling away their fortunes. Plummed knights going to a lodge meeting. Costless firemen dozing in the sun. There's a little place where Navajo blankets are made and then sold by Indians to tourists at west.

Dickens wrote something about this part of town. But I forget what. An old costume shop. Street gamins grouped about an ivory tinted landau. They'll loot the horn and scamper off. A Chinese laundryman resting in his doorway to enjoy his two and a half puff pipe. There's no smell like that of a Chinese laundry.

A Yiddish theatre letting out. Old men in small caps. Shawled women and red checked girls. A future merchant prince selling sox at the curb. Henry Ford wouldn't get many votes down here. Tenement houses built by Millionaire Philpotts. Filled with artistic dreamers. This is an age of civilization and yet that drug store advertises charms in its window.

East Side street car passengers carry a chip on their shoulders. They take no back talk from the conductor. And the women's laps are always filled with baskets. The little triangular parks filled with Spring loungers. Nodding patriarchs with stained, silver boards. Silent, brooding women cowed by life itself.

All the old gin mills are shuttered and barred. "The Orchid Cafe." And situated on the Bowery. There is a flair to the delicatessen shops over here. They even have artistic cheese and sausage displays. Fire Sales and Auctions. I think I'll get up where the boot-leggers are more fashionably dressed. And where the shoe stores are booteries!

Dress means less in New York than anywhere. I believe. The perfectly groomed man may be an aristocrat or a stable scullion. He came into a hotel lobby where I was waiting. His clothes represented the highest of the Fifth Avenue tailor's art. A monocle dangled at his waistcoat.

Soon she came—a vision of true loveliness. Her complexion, her coiffure and gown perfect. This was their conversation verbatim before they drifted into the dining room. He: Lo! kid. She: How 'r you? Ain't it terrible.

WALT MASON

THE KILLER

The lady, with her little gun, does murder with a smile, because her lover, tiresome one, has bored her quite a while. He doesn't wear his whiskers right, he is a careless toff; and so, some soft and balmy night, she calmly bumps him off. And when they bring her into court, the law's ancestral coop, the jury men, each one a sport, acquit her with a whoop. And then she feels that duty calls in no uncertain tones, and in the movie picture halls she ought to draw some bones. She wants to teach our boys and girls that vice their souls will harm, that homely virtues are the pearls, and sin's a false alarm. And while she's guarding thus the youth from all that evil means, and through the films expounding truth, she'll gather in the beans. But soon her hoarse growl and lean, for movie men don't fall; they say, "The modern movie queen needs something more than gall." Methinks it is a beautiful sign that her ambition's strong that she is not allowed to shine and elevate the young. The young can find much better aids to higher life. I wait, and bloody little claramalds should fade, and won't be missed.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE
XXII—ALABAMA

THE discovery of Alabama is credited to De Soto in 1540. The English also laid claim to this territory and included it in the grant to North Carolina. But it was the French who first settled here erecting in 1702 Fort St. Louis on Mobile Bay and founding the town of Mobile nine years later. Mobile was for many years the capital of Louisiana. France in 1763 ceded the territory east of the Mississippi to England and the northern part of the present State of Alabama was joined to the Illinois territory. The southern portion was known as West Florida. Serious conflict with the Indians was kept up for many years. In fact, even as late as 1812, there was an uprising of the Creeks which resulted in terrible atrocities and massacres.

During the Revolution West Florida remained loyal to England, but was seized by Spain only to be turned over to the United States in 1813. This Mobile section was then added to the northern district and the State of Alabama was formed and became the twenty-second state of the Union in 1819.

The meaning of the name Alabama is variously interpreted. It was the name of an Indian tribe which inhabited this territory at the time of De Soto's first visit. After this tribe the river was named and the state was called Alabama after the river. The Indian word was supposed to mean "Here we rest," and these words are used on the state's coat of arms, but this interpretation is doubtful and its real meaning is uncertain. Alabama is sometimes called the Plantation State. Its area is 51,968 square miles.

RAILROADS OF WORLD FACE SERIOUS CRISIS

Europe Reported in Condition as Bad as United States—Economic Condition of World Blamed—Deficits Grow

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The world's railroads are facing a crisis. Report and statistics gathered by the Association of Railway Executives here show that not only are the railroads of the United States facing serious difficulties, but that the railroads of Europe are facing even more critical conditions.

Post-war business depression and mismanagement has brot the railroads of the world face to face with a struggle for existence under private ownership, according to the reports received here.

The situation that confronts the American railroads is well known. "The financial position of the railroads in the United States may be bad, but they are apparently as badly off, if not worse, in England," says a statement of the situation prepared by the Association of Railway Executives.

"The railways in France are suffering from the same malady," says the statement.

The railways of Russia and Germany are known to be in a deplorable condition; and the same holds true of the railroad systems in many of the smaller countries.

The railroad systems of England on December 31, 1926, showed a deficit of $169,549,557 to be met from the public treasury, according to the reports received here.

The latest statistics available show that the French railroads suffered a deficit of $260,578,100 in 1919, as compared with a deficit of $15,153,900 in 1913.

The total deficit of the railways operated by the Canadian Government in 1926 is reported as $70,221,724.

U. S. Deficit Nearly Million During January the American railroads suffered a deficit of $958,329, and in February there was a deficit of $7,265,000.

As evidence that the present depression which is affecting the railroads is similar to that which has come during every period of business depression, the Association of Railway Executives declares that at present "the percentage of idle cars is slightly less than it was during the business slump that followed the signing of the armistice, or the financial depression of 1908."

In defense of increased rates the association presents a statistical study by Julius H. Parmelee which concludes that "prices have been declining ever since the increased rates went into effect, so that the effect of the higher rates has not been in the direction of boosting prices."

Economics Blamed

Further supporting its contention that world economic conditions are responsible for present business conditions, the association's statement quotes E. E. Clark, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, as follows: "The whole country and all of our people, excepting those who are and have been shamelessly profiteering, are suffering the after-effects of a titanic war. . . . In some quarters zealous efforts are made to have it appear that this situation is in large part, or in the main, due to high freight rates. . . . Careful inquiry discloses that the utilization of products is prevented, not by the freight rates but by economic conditions.

Forecasting the Weather.

A homely method of foretelling the weather is to drop carefully a lump of sugar into a cup of coffee. If the bubbles it causes suddenly rush from the center to the side of the cup, it is going to rain very hard. If the air bubbles assemble in the center and then pass to the side of the cup in a deliberate way, you must still be prepared for what the weather forecast would call "some showers." But if the bubbles refuse to stir from the center of the cup, you may go forth to your labors assured of a fine day.

BRIAND HOPED FOR EARLY SETTLEMENT OF REPARATION FUSS

PARIS, April 30.—"I go to London in full confidence of an allied agreement and that we are finally going to settle once and for all the difficult matter of reparations," declared Premier Briand to the International News Service just before he left Paris at noon Friday to attend the meeting of the supreme council.

Among the last conferences held here by the premier was one with Minister of War Barthou. They talked together earnestly a short time before the premier's train departed.

It is expected that the supreme council meeting will end on Tuesday night.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The apparently fully informed of the attitude of the allies toward the German reparations proposal the Harding administration gave no evidence that it would consider the task of mediation undertaken by Secretary Hughes a hopeless one.

Being of the opinion that the main point involved is whether the Berlin offer forms a proper basis for negotiation rather than whether it is acceptable, this government takes the view that the door to mediation has by no means definitely closed by the decision of France and Great Britain as to acceptability.

This view is said to have been conveyed by Secretary Hughes to the representatives of the allied governments in unmistakable informal terms in conversations.

Observers who anticipated the French government's rejection of the German proposals, but who nevertheless believed Secretary Hughes had a "trump card up his sleeve" see a key to the situation in the latest elucidation in the American position.

They point out the Harding administration has merely indicated its view that "every man, woman and child" in the United States has a vital interest in the settlement of the reparations controversy.

Secretary Hughes, feeling that the world would not get back to normal until a satisfactory solution of that problem is found, agreed to consider bringing any German proposal to the attention of the allies in a manner acceptable to them.

For Mr. Hughes to abandon his efforts merely because the first German proposal did not meet with the entire approval of the allies, it is argued, would be to surrender before the battle were well begun, and the United States would emerge from the encounter with a considerably lessened prestige.

But Lose Tackle

A 11 1/2 pound shorehead catfish was landed by Russell Schoonover and Edward Carter both of Coshocton who have been camping on the Waring farm in Bethelhem-tp for the past few days.

They caught the big fish Thursday. The thing that is puzzling the young men now is, where did the fishing tackle which was in the bottom of the boat get to while they were landing the fish.

They had a good variety of tackle lying in the bottom of the boat while they were fishing. During the excitement following the hooking of the big catfish the tackle mysteriously disappeared.

TIMES SHOW NEED OF CHANGES IN THE KNOX RESOLUTION

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The German reparations muddle will probably necessitate further textual changes in the re-drafted Knox peace resolution, Republican senators supporting it declared today.
Senator Sterling, Republican, South Dakota, indicated his purpose to propose an amendment that would make it clear to Germany and to this country's associates in the World war that congress in seeking to pave the way for peace between the United States and the Central powers, had no intention of interfering with the administration's policy respecting demands made on Germany for reparations.

The play "Phoebe" is a jazzy, eccentric naturo.

House Approves Governor's Veto

COLUMBUS, April 30.—The house of representatives will not follow the course of the senate in over riding Governor Davis' veto of the Chappell bill, providing that the state shall aid municipalities in maintaining bridges on intercounty highways passing thru the municipalities. When the governor's veto message along with the senate's action came up in the house today, they were promptly committed to the committee on highways where it is said by house leaders they will remain during the remainder of the session, thus permitting the executive veto to stand. An executive veto kills a measure unless it is re-passed by both houses.

IS DRAWN BETWEEN HOBOS AND BUMS

CHICAGO, April 30.—The American "hobo" harkens to the call of the open road but he works to support himself, that person commonly called the "bum" never works and also he stays in one place just as long as the police will let him.
These essential differences between America's migratory workers and just plain loafers were dwelt upon at length today at the opening of a three-day emergency meeting of the International Brotherhood Welfare Association on the unemployment situation, with more than thirty officials of the organization from all over the country including James L. Hays, millionaire hobo of St. Louis in attendance.
Mrs. Lillian LeBova, of Toledo, Ohio came to the defense of the American hobo as the first speaker of the day.
"The fact that they never get a steady job," Mrs. LeBova said, "is simply the fault of nature. They're unfortunate. That's all. When the first notes of the robin are heard in spring, they hit out for the open road. They're migratory by nature, but they'll work whenever they can get a job."
The meeting expects to adopt a resolution calling upon President Harding and congress to consider unemployment.

"Workers of America—All over Europe the workers are arming themselves. They are preparing to forcibly overthrow their capitalist governments, they are learning to use force against force. There is no other way."
"On this May day let us prepare for the social revolution which is spreading around the earth."
"On May day there is one country where the workers will celebrate. That country is Soviet Russia. In Soviet Russia the workers rule."
"Get ready for the proletarian revolution in America. The Communist party of America will use arms against arms; force against force."

Activities of U. S. in Fortifying and Enlarging Pacific Possessions Regarded by Nippon Newspapers as "Intrusion"—Declare They Are Fed Up on American 'Impeccability' in Negotiations

TOKIO, April 30.—A conversation that has a bearing on the opinion now forming in Tokyo regarding the Japanese-made expression of "American Imperialism," took place in one of the offices of the Department of the Navy recently.
An American newspaperman was talking with a high official of the Navy Department on the present building plan of the Japanese Navy, the largest plan that has been known in the history of Japan. In the course of the conversation the Japanese official cited the American Yap claims, her rapidly growing interests in Asia, and the claims of other nations here, as reasons why Japan should defend her shores with a great navy, one which will be second to that of the United States.

"Isn't America usually right?" the newspaperman asked the Navy official. "Has Japan anything to fear, anything that makes this preparation for the second greatest navy necessary?"
Which question brought the answer regarding "American Imperialism."
"That is what Japan dislikes, oh, yes," replied the naval official. "Americans and official America are too willing to say, as a preliminary statement, 'American ways of doing things must be given first consideration. America is always right.'"
"America won the war," the Japanese went to the peace table in Paris, and America appeared with her claims. "America had won the war. America had made safe the peace of the world. America was right, and her position must be accepted by the rest of the world, regardless."
"Japan feels that she has a certain place to fill in this part of the world and, frankly, she objects to the American saying in Asia, 'America is the only power that can be right.'"
America an intruder.
Without intentionally doing so the officials of the navy summed up, in official circles and in the vernacular newspapers, that may be said to reflect the feeling of Japan towards America today. The assumption of power by the Republican party gave opportunity to comment on the strong policy of the Republicans; the continuance of the Wilson claims regarding Yap, the maintenance of the American and Chinese that they have a privilege to put a wireless station in China, regardless of the Mitsui claims of Japan to prior rights, the announcement in Japan of the intention by the United States to fortify Guam and to improve Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, have simply gone to prove the claim of these editors, so they say, and consequently the complaints against American "intrusion" or at the best activity in Asia, continues.

The American committee's decision to resuscitate the bill to fortify the Island of Guam at a cost of $1,500,000 will administer a serious blow to the Japanese plan of state defense, the Tokyo Nichi Nichi thinks, according to an editorial in that journal recently.
Guam a Sore Spot.
"The American plan of rivaling Japan," the Nichi Nichi says, "has thus reached its second period. The radius of action for the American fleet, with the Island of Guam as the center of its operations, is so serious to the Japanese Empire that the latter's coast may be reached in but five days."
The Tokyo newspaper, in continuing, says that the American plan to fortify its island in a place where Japan has no defensive works cannot but impress the Japanese as a mere form of challenge. This point impresses the Japanese mind at home, according to the Nichi Nichi, because America is the very country which has dared to call Japan militaristic.

Delicacy Put Aside.
The Kokumin, just delicate in its handling of the America-Japan question, says, in discussing the Yap Island claims.
America wants to remove whatever stands in the way of her Pacific policy. Japan offers an inch. America will try to take it all. She wants to deny the Japanese the right of control over the South Seas islands altogether. The question will therefore be before the Japanese of whether they will be content with their diplomatic policies formulated with the foreign Powers' interest first, or with their own.

EXPERIENCE

Brings a Ray of Hope to Childless Women

Lowell, Mass.—"I had anemia from the time I was sixteen years old and was very irregular. If I did any house cleaning or washing I would faint and have to be put to bed, my husband thinking every minute was my last. After reading your text-book for women I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash, and have never felt better than I have the last two years. I can work, eat, sleep, and feel as strong as can be. Doctors told me I could never have children—I was too weak—but after taking Vegetable Compound it strengthened me so I gave birth to an eight pound boy. I was well all the time, did all my work up to the last day, and had a natural birth. Everybody who knew me was surprised, and when they asked me what made me strong I tell them with great pleasure, 'I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never felt better in my life.' Use this testimonial at any time."—Mrs. ELIZABETH SMART, 142 W. Sixth St., Lowell, Mass.
This experience of Mrs. Smart is surely a strong recommendation for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is only one of a great many similar cases.

national welfare first. The offers of compromises to America only stiffen the American attitude on mandates."
Thus in the charge against wireless infringements in China, unwarranted Yap claims, unnecessary fortification of Guam and the enlargement of Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, Japanese officials see a danger to Japanese power in the Pacific countries. And, as the discussion radiates heat in the press and the public orator's stand, the charge of "American Imperialism," a counter to America's charges against Japan but a few months ago, gains in popularity.

RELATIVITY TO BE TAUGHT IN GREAT STATE PALESTINE

Professor Albert Einstein
Now in America to Raise Funds for University of Jerusalem, Where His Theory Will Be Studied

NEW YORK, April 30.—Jerusalem, capital city of the new Zion, the Jewish national state, will soon be the site of a non-teaching university, the immediate object of which will be the study of relativity by some of the "best minds" of Europe and America preparatory to the formation of faculties properly equipped to teach "the physics of the morrow."

Professor Albert Einstein, discoverer of the theory of relativity bearing his name, is now in this country with the Zionist Commission to raise funds for the proposed University of Jerusalem.

In an interview given to International News Service today, Professor Einstein, the man who believes that light travels in curved lines, outlined the plan of the new university. He said:

"According to our plans, the University will be begun not with teaching faculties, but with research institutes. The reason for this is that on one hand there is not such a big settlement in Palestine as would require a complete university. Palestine could not provide thousands of students just now, and foreign students could not come this year or next on account of the rate of exchange."
"On the other hand," he continued, "Palestine is a country which needs scientific progress, and we want to create a scientific personnel which would help to solve the vast scientific problems of the country. This plan has been adopted because of the special conditions under which we have to work. This plan, of course, is not absolutely hard and fast, and in the course of realization it may be changed."

Mr. Einstein said his theories on relativity would not be "pushed," or extensively expounded at the University.
"It is necessary first," he said, "to teach the foundations of mathematics and physics as ordinarily accepted to-day. When the student becomes well enough equipped with these subjects he may then learn the new theories of relativity and the methods and ideas leading up to them. One must be taught today's physics before he can learn tomorrow's. The usual study of physics will be taught at the university as well as my theory."

Mr. Einstein denied that he intended to become head of the university or even a member of its faculty. He said he would lecture there often, however, and connect himself with its activities.

SANDUSKY, April 30.—A blowout in the main line of the Logan Gas and Fuel company, seven miles south of Sandusky, late this afternoon has cut off the city's natural gas supply. ANOTHER WEEK OF WASHINGTON, April 30.—With the senate set for the passage of the re-drafted Knox resolution today, Republican leaders of congress indicated that it would be jammed thru the house and sent to the president for his approval by the end of next week.

COST OF GERMANY'S PUNISHMENT TO BE CHARGED TO BERLIN

PARIS, April 30.—The cost of occupying the Ruhr if Germany refuses to satisfy the allied reparations demands, must be borne by Germany and the bill will be a tremendous addition to the sum Germany already owes.

This was made plain today by General De Castelnau, President of the Army Commission of the Chamber of Deputies who organized the mobilization of the French armies at the outbreak of the World war.

"The occupation will require more troops than an ordinary military invasion," explained Gen. De Castelnau. "If we were simply making an advance into enemy country, the task would be comparatively easy. We would carry along enough artillery to 'But in occupying the Ruhr, we will only execute a police operation. We do not intend to harm any one, or destroy any property. It follows that we must employ many more troops than would be necessary for a real invasion, in order to guard against guerilla warfare or surprise attack by small groups of discontented Germans."

"That is not all. Even the only the two classes of 1918 and 1919 with about 350,000 men are mobilized, it will involve a serious economic disaster."

Unemployment Pinch Is Sure To Be Felt

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 30.—More than 3,000,000 American workers will feel the pinch of unemployment until wages reach a permanent lower level. Homer L. Ferguson, director of the chamber of commerce of the United States declared today.

"Business men and manufacturers attending the convention of the chamber of commerce here are convinced that wage reductions must come before the economic depression clears completely away," asserted Ferguson, who recently persuaded workmen to accept decreases at his big Newport News shipbuilding plant.

The committee refused to accept the house amendment giving religious refugees unrestricted admission to the country.

APPOINTED CHIEF OF DIVISION OF RUSSIAN AFFAIRS

WAR PROVIDED

boast of the religiously indifferent vanishes in the face of impending death. She then showed the tenderness of Jesus in dealing with these soldier boys when they turned to Him and how many of them found Him for the first time before they went into the battle from which they never came out.

She then spoke with great feeling of America coming into the war, and the joy of the English speaking allies when America declared war.

Her work in England among American soldier boys was akin to her work among the English and Austrians. Three or four hundreds would accept Christ in a meeting. It was the same everywhere. When she had a chance to address these boys going to their trenches or battle line when they knew that death was impending, they turned to Christ for refuge and deliverance. The beauty of it all was that Christ was ready to "give them power to become the 'Sons of God.'"

Those who have heard Miss Millar are amazed at her fund of information. Her knowledge of countries, men and international affairs. Her travel and keenness of observation have made her one of the most attractive public speakers in America.

She will speak twice on Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Sunday will be Miss Millar's last service. She leaves on Monday evening for Chicago.

Ms. Evelyn Valle in her roof-tent room on top of the Hotel Nassau.

Ms. Evelyn Valle, Parisienne dancer, who has come to this country to introduce new dances on Broadway, found New York climate too stuffy and so she had a tent erected on the top of her hotel. Her novel apartment is equipped with every modern improvement, including electric light, telephone and running water. Ms. Valle will appear shortly introducing the Portuguese Fado and Brazilian Caracacha, her two new dances. King Alfonso of Spain declared his admiration for this pretty dancer when she introduced the shimmy in his country.

REDS IN PARIS PLAN TERRORS ON MAY DAY

Communist Organ Wants
Unemployed to March on Gilded Palaces of Latin Quarter to Raid the 'Newly Rich'

PARIS, April 30—The annual campaign to create a reign of terror in Paris on May Day has just been launched by French Communist leaders.

The first shot is an article in the Communist organ, Humanite, inviting "120,000" unemployed of Paris to march on the gilded dance palaces of Montmartre as a demonstration against the reckless expenditure of money by Americans. South Americans, English and French "newly rich". This article, it is understood, will shortly be followed by others with the object of stirring up the unemployed to a great manifestation on the first day of May.

"We cannot better symbolize the scandalous state of present day morals than to point out to the 120,000 unemployed in Paris the character and costly diversissements and the clientele of the Montmartre establishments where a small minority spend their nights," begins Humanite. "With the official complicity of the police, a band of profiteers are exploiting the newly rich and the foreigners under every possible form."

Complain of Prices.

"Since the armistice, and even during the last six months these night 'joints' have continued to multiply. A whole section of Paris (Montmartre) is infested with them. They serve champagne suppers at outrageous prices. Some of them are full until daybreak despite solemn police regulations that provide for their closing at 2 a. m. And the only answer the police give is this: 'well, we can't all be bishops.'"

"The personnel of these places include, in addition to the waiters wine merchants and professional dancers, a horde of young and old women, more or less undressed for the benefit of the clients some musicians and a few 'detectives.' The clients spend fortunes every night. One night all the unemployed of Paris should march on the Palace Pigalle (centre of Montmartre) to show these reckless spenders their misery."

The police have taken no extra precautions as a result of the Communist appeal. Most of the Montmartre night establishments lie along narrow streets, converging on the Place Pigalle, or intersecting the Rue Pigalle. Previous experience in May Day rioting, especially around the Place de la Republique, has taught the French police that such a section can easily be defended against mobs.

The Paris Federation of Labor has announced that it will observe May Day on May 1, though that day is Sunday this year. The Communist leaders are proposing to continue demonstrations the following day.

Miss Neyssa McMein and the sketch she made of President Harding at the White House.

The first portrait of President Harding since he entered the White House was made recently by Miss Neyssa McMein, famous woman artist. She sketched the president as he went about his duties in the executive offices.

"Mr. Harding, I think, believed he was a good model, because he remained in the same room," says Miss McMein. "He was awfully busy. He has a strong face with well defined characteristics."

Metal Suits In Ye Olden Times.
Armors of ancient days often achieved fame for the quality of their metal suits, but their secrets are an open book in the light of modern metallurgical analysis and microscopy. Sections of iron cut from some 12 samples of old armor and examined by the United States bureau of standards revealed that a pure wrought iron was used, carbonized into steel by cementation, hammered into sheets and welded together. The completed suit of armor, after shaping, was then hardened by quenching.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Chinese Family Relations.
There is no such species as the "old maid" in China. The lot of the concubine is not, generally speaking, hard; and the position is respectable. A concubine is ordinarily taken in default of issue from the wife. The children of concubines are legitimate. A man would not dare to brace public opinion or the wrath of his wife and her relations by taking a concubine against his wife's wishes. Father and mother are equally venerable in the eyes of the child; the father is "the stern one" and the mother "the gentle one," but both are notoriously indulgent to their children.

Ain't It the Truth?
A man spends a life time in an earnest attempt to acquire knowledge. About the only thing he learns to a certainty is that if he wishes to be shaved on Saturday it is better to go to the barber shop in the forenoon. Everything else is disputed by somebody.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

AIR MAIL PILOT IS INSTANTLY KILLED

CLEVELAND, April 30—Preparations are being made today to return to his home in Chicago the remains of air mail pilot J. T. Christensen, who late yesterday crashed with his plane to the Erie railroad tracks at Scranton and University roads, S. W., dying instantly. His plane was reduced to a mass of wreckage. When the plane hit the tracks the gasoline tank exploded and the body of the mail pilot was badly burned as a result.

Christensen's engine was missing, and he was forced to seek a landing. A dense fog obscured his vision, and his efforts to find the river or a vacant lot proved unavailing. Suddenly his engine failed and he dropped to the tracks.

Christensen's fight for life and safety was watched by hundreds. He was 31 years of age. He was well known in Cleveland, and other Ohio towns, having flown in the first aerial tournament held in Cleveland in August, 1919. He was married two years ago to Miss Lena Davis of Cleveland and the couple took a flying honeymoon trip from Cleveland to Akron and other Ohio cities.

Something Wrong With Him.
A man, so to speak, who is not able to bow to his own conscience every morning is hardly in a condition to respectfully salute the world at any other time of the day.—Douglas Jerrold.
